5. UNFINISHED/ONGOING BUSINESS

None

6. NEW BUSINESS

a. Tree appeal for 854 Sunset Drive

City Arborist Albert Weisfuss permitted home owner Charles Shinhut to remove three of seven Monterey pines on his property as they were dead or dying. Then an adjacent homeowner, Herbert Behrens of 861 Marino Pines, hired an independent arborist and asked for a permit to remove three more pines that were next to his fence and leaning towards his home. On closer examination, the city arborist permitted two of those to be removed but found the third had to indications of instability that would warrant its removal. It is a mature tree that should be retained and monitored.

The Behrens, who are paying for the removals on their neighbor’s property, appealed the decision to the BNRC. Robbi Behren said their independent arborist told them the third tree was the worst of the bunch.

Commissioners discussed the different arborists' opinions and on a motion by Commissioner Akeman seconded by Commissioner Flaig, voted 5-1 to uphold the city arborist's decision to deny removal of the third pine. Commissioner Myers dissented.

b. Trees in city budget

Jessica Kahn, environmental programs manager, reported that the current city budget has $177,000 for trees, $175,000 of it used for contracts with the part-time city arborist and two tree contractors. She also reported that 175 property owners have yet to plant required replants for trees they have removed. The staff sends letters reminding property owners of the replant requirements. Commissioners and staff discussed how compliance might be improved with penalties and "more teeth" in the reminder letters. Chair Anton offered to help write letters or stuff envelopes or whatever it takes.

7. COMMISSIONER'S REPORTS

Vice Chair Flaig reported that she and Chair Anton attended a seminar organized by Assemblymember Mark Stone on beach erosion that was very informative. She said it would be worth watching on his Website.

Commissioner Akeman reported this year's harbor seal pupping is nearly over and 11 pups were born on or around the 5th Street beach. Those were among the healthiest of this year's pups as most looked good and have weaned successfully. Overall, warm water and the resultant absence of fish caused a food that have devastated the local harbor seals and their pups, holding this year's generation to about a third of what it has been.

Chair Anton suggested forming a committee to see what can be done about saving the Magic Carpet west of Lovers Point.

8. STAFF REPORTS

a. Lovers Point Watershed Project

Public Works Director Gho reported the work to replace failing stormwater and sanitary sewer lines in the watershed for approximately a fourth of the city will start at the end of May and stretch into December. Road and underground work will be done in sections from Pine Avenue down to Lovers Point in the $3.5 million project designed to reduce storm water and pollution flows into Monterey Bay. Most of the cost is provided by a state Clean Beaches initiative grant.

Public comment was received from Lisa Ciani, who wondered if stormwater could be diverted to the Marina treatment plant in rainless periods of the rainy season, and Mrs. Kabat of Jewell Street who wondered how construction would impact her home.

b. Contacting the Commission via email

Jessica Kahn reported that a link has been added to the BNRC Website that allows anyone to send an email that will automatically be forwarded to Commission members.

9. ITEMS FOR NEXT AGENDA (June 21, 2016)

Chair Anton wants to discuss a way to save the Magic Carpet west of Lover Point and the Mesembryanthemum crystallinum that provides the stunning blooms. .

10. ADJOURNMENT at 5:35 p.m.
